Learning by the Shore – Interactive Lecture Series

Come to the Point Vicente Interpretive Center and listen as guest speakers share their knowledge about some of the unique features of the Palos Verdes Peninsula in the open air setting of the Ibrahim El Helfni Amphitheater. Jacob Gutierrez, Los Serenos docent and South Bay Tongva Tribe elder will begin each lecture with an introduction to the Tongva people, the original Peninsula inhabitants for over 600 years, with a native blessing and a special focus on their history, culture, sea faring methods and more. Stay a little longer and join a Natural History Museum expert as he shares his vast knowledge and passion for all things fossilized with a gentle humor and good nature. Learn about shore whaling and the intrepid men who set out from these very shores to bring in a whale of a prize. If weather is more your thing, join us for the wonder of cloud formations. Join our dedicated movie buff as he recounts the multitude of shows and feature films that have utilized this Peninsula as their backdrop, from films featuring James Dean and titles like “It’s a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World” to Sandra Bullock’s “Murder By Numbers” or Leonardo DiCaprio’s “Inception”, due out this summer. Bring your lunch and a hat, and spend an hour with us by the sea.

2nd Saturdays 11:30 am – 12:30 pm (No lecture in June)

Point Vicente Interpretive Center

Ages: 15 years & older

Fee: Free!
